

Scenario: You're not supposed to wear your brother's clothes without asking first, but you want to borrow his blue sweater for school today, and he's already gone.

What do you do?

Scenario: You're visiting your grandmother. When no one else is in the room, you break a lamp. But no one saw you do it.

What do you do?

Scenario: Your mom told you never to run in the house. You ran through the family room, fell, and cut your lip. Your mom is comforting you and asks you what happened.

What do you say?

Scenario: You come home from school, it's a beautiful day, but you have a lot of homework to do. Your friends want to play.

What do you tell them?

Scenario: Your mom and dad have told you that it is wrong to smoke cigarettes, but your friends want you to try it.
What do you do?

Scenario: A stranger comes up to you as you walk home from school and asks you what time it is.
What do you say?

Give me an example of using wisdom at school?

What big problem did Solomon face when he became king?

Give me an example of using wisdom on the playground?

How did Solomon use God's wisdom?

Give me an example of using wisdom in your neighborhood?

Where can you get wisdom, knowledge, and understanding?

What can you do when you need wisdom?

Tell me the name of someone besides God who you think is very wise.

What do you think makes a person wise?

What wise instruction has your mom or dad or teacher told you?

How does God help us to become wise?