

Mordecai's Plan

(Esther 5-6)

Introduction

[Teacher, print the word Pride on a card.] Who can tell me what this word means? Have you ever met someone that brags about himself? A person that is full of pride is often a show-off -- someone that is always trying to draw attention to himself. Or someone that is conceited and selfish.

[Fold sides of card back showing only the I.] The heart of prides is I. Pride is when I am more important than anyone or anything else. [Fold sides of card out showing only "RID."] God says that you and I as Christians need to get "rid" of pride. If we don't, pride can ruin our lives.

A man in our Bible lesson today learned that pride is a very dangerous thing! He was an important servant to the king of Persia—and he knew it!

Opening Prayer

Father, we are born with a "want to" to do things our own way. We have to learn how to be thoughtful of other people. Teach us through this lesson this morning how important it is for us to get rid of our pride so that we might love others and treat them with respect and honor. In Jesus' name, we pray. Amen.

Memory Verse

A man's pride will bring him low, but the humble in spirit will retain honor.
(Proverbs 29:23)

Review

For the past two weeks we have been learning life lessons from the book of Esther.

1. What do you remember about Esther? (She was an orphan, raised by her older cousin, Mordecai, who was like a father to her. She became the Queen of Persia.)
2. How did Esther become the Queen of Persia? (The King had a beauty contest and choose her to be his queen.)
3. Who was Haman? (The wicked man the king had appointed to be the prime minister of Persia.)
4. Why did Haman want to kill all of the children of Israel? (Because Mordecai wouldn't bow down to him.)
5. When Mordecai told Esther to go to the king and beg him to save the lives of her people, the Jews, why was Esther afraid to go to the king? (She hadn't been invited and the penalty for going before the king without an invitation was death, unless he held out his golden scepter.)

But Mordecai told Esther, if she kept quiet at a time like this, she and all of the Jews would be killed. So, she decided to risk her life and go to the king. She said, "If I die, I die." (See Esther 4:16)

Continuing the Story...

Esther 5:1

On the third day of the fast, Esther put on her royal robes and entered the inner court of the palace, just across from the king's hall. The king was sitting on his royal throne, facing the entrance.

I'm sure that Esther walked very slowly to the inner court of the palace where the king was sitting on his royal throne. I bet she was trembling with fright. Would the king extend his golden scepter to her?

Esther 5:2

When he saw Queen Esther standing there in the inner court, he welcomed her and held out the gold scepter to her. So Esther approached and touched the end of the scepter.

King Xerxes was pleased to see Esther and he held out his golden scepter to her. Her life was spared! She touched the tip of the scepter and knelt before him.

Esther 5:3

Then the king asked her, "What do you want, Queen Esther? What is your request? I will give it to you, even if it is half the kingdom!"

The king told Esther he would give her anything she wanted. But Esther was wise, she did not tell the king what she wanted right away. Instead, she invited him and Haman to a dinner party she planned. She wanted to be careful to follow the Lord's leading so that she chose the right time and the right way and the right words to say.

There is a lesson here for us, too. Sometimes we need to wait before we say things. Don't be too quick to speak out; wait for the Lord to tell you what to say and when to say it. And, trust that He will give you right words to say.

Well, both the king and Haman were very pleased to be invited to the queen's banquet. While they were eating, the king asked her again what she wanted.

Esther 5:6

And while they were drinking wine, the king said to Esther, "Now tell me what you really want. What is your request? I will give it to you, even if it is half the kingdom!"

Esther was still waiting on the Lord's timing...

Esther 5:7-8

Esther replied, "This is my request and deepest wish. (8) If I have found favor with the king, and if it pleases the king to grant my request and do what I ask, please come with Haman tomorrow to the banquet I will prepare for you. Then I will explain what this is all about."

So, she asked the king and Haman to come to another dinner party.

Haman was very pleased that only he and the king had been invited to the queen's special banquets. But, as he left the palace, his joy suddenly turned to anger when he saw Mordecai. Mordecai still refused to bow down to him.

Esther 5:9

Haman was a happy man as he left the banquet! But when he saw Mordecai sitting at the palace gate, not standing up or trembling nervously before him, Haman became furious.

Haman was furious!

When he got home, he told his wife and friends how upset he was at Mordecai because he would not bow down to him. When they heard this, they told him to build a hang man's platform and have the king hang Mordecai.

Haman thought this was a great idea. He ordered the gallows to be built. Haman had planned that in the morning he would ask the king to hang Mordecai from it.

That night the king could not sleep. So, the king decided to have the royal record books brought in and read to him. He thought maybe that would help him fall asleep. As the servant was reading the record of the king's accomplishments, he read the story of how Mordecai had saved the king's life by telling the king of a plot to kill him.

Remember back in chapter 2 when I told you not to forget about the good deed that Mordecai had done? Way back before the king had appointed Haman to be the prime minister and told everybody they had to bow down to honor him, Mordecai had overheard two bad guys making plans to kill the king. He got word to the king and those two bad guys were stopped. Well, the story about Mordecai's good deed was written down in this book of records. But for some reason, the king had never rewarded Mordecai for his bravery. It was all but forgotten over time.

The king couldn't sleep that night and had his servant read the record book and when he got to the part about Mordecai's good deed, the king stopped him and asked:

Esther 6:3

"What reward or recognition did we ever give Mordecai for this?" the king asked. His attendants replied, "Nothing has been done for him."

Well, it happened that Haman was just coming in to ask the king to hang Mordecai.

Esther 6:4

"Who is that in the outer court?" the king inquired. As it happened, Haman had just arrived in the outer court of the palace to ask the king to impale Mordecai on the pole he had prepared.

But before Haman could ask the king to kill Mordecai, the king asked Haman an interesting question:

Esther 6:6

So Haman came in, and the king said, "What should I do to honor a man who truly pleases me?" Haman thought to himself, "Whom would the king wish to honor more than me?"

Haman thought the king was talking about him. He didn't know that the king really wanted to honor Mordecai for his bravery.

Esther 6:7-9

So he replied, "If the king wishes to honor someone, (8) he should bring out one of the king's own royal robes, as well as a horse that the king himself has ridden—one with a royal emblem on its head. (9) Let the robes and the horse be handed over to one of the king's most noble officials. And let him see that the man whom the king wishes to honor is dressed in the king's robes and led through the city square on the king's horse. Have the official shout as they go, 'This is what the king does for someone he wishes to honor!'"

The king thought this was a wonderful idea.

Esther 6:10

"Excellent!" the king said to Haman. "Quick! Take the robes and my horse, and do just as you have said for Mordecai the Jew, who sits at the gate of the palace. Leave out nothing you have suggested!"

What an unexpected turn of events this was for Haman! The very man he had planned to put to death, he now had to proclaim as a hero. Haman was completely humiliated before his wife and friends. Haman's pride was ruining his life.

We all need to be careful not to let our pride ruin our lives. One way to guard against pride is to pray every day that God would help you please Him in your actions towards others—that you will treat them as you would want to be treated. Be willing to listen to your family and friends if they are trying to tell you to change your attitude. The Bible says that "A man's pride will bring him low, but the humble in spirit will retain honor" (Proverbs 29:23)

How humiliated and angry Haman was to have to honor the very man he wanted to kill. But he had to do it because the king had commanded it. He would have to do to his worst enemy what he wanted the king to do for him. He even had to lead the horse around town himself! When it was over, he ran back to his home, totally ashamed.

Then suddenly, a servant of the king arrived and reminded him to come to the banquet Queen Esther had prepared.

Next week we'll pick up the story again to find out how Esther, a poor orphan girl who had become the Queen of Persia, was able to save her people, the Jews, from being wiped off the face of the earth.

Closing Prayer

Father, forgive us for times that we have had prideful attitudes. Help us to not be prideful like Haman was. We want to be humble, helpful, and kind to others. In Jesus' name, we pray. Amen.

Hangman

Use the following phrases for a "hangman" game:

- Esther risked her life

- Haman plotted to kill the Jews
- The king held out his scepter
- Esther had a feast
- Haman was full of pride

Or, use the following questions in a game of your choice:

1. Why was Esther nervous about going in to see the king? (He could have her killed for appearing before him without an invitation.)
2. What did the king do to show that Esther had found favor with him? (He held out the golden scepter.)
3. Did Esther tell the king what her request was right away? (No! She invited him and Haman to a dinner party, instead.)
4. Why was Haman so full of joy at being asked to the queen's special banquet? (He felt special and honored. He was full of pride.)
5. What changed Haman's joyful attitude at being invited to the queen's banquet? (He passed Mordecai who still refused to bow to him.)
6. What advice did Haman's wife and friends give him when they saw how bitter and upset he was? (They told him to build a hang man's platforms and have Mordecai killed.)
7. What happened that night when the king could not sleep? (The king told a servant to bring in the book of records to read to him.)
8. What did the servant read to the king from the record books? (The part about Mordecai warning the king about two palace guards who were plotting to kill the king.)
9. What question did the king ask Haman as he came into the palace to ask the king to have Mordecai killed? (He asked, "What would be a good way to honor someone you appreciate?")
10. Who did Haman think the king wanted to honor? (Himself)

11. Describe some of the ways Haman thought he should be honored. (see verses 7-9)
12. What was the unexpected turn of events for Haman? (The king told Haman that he wanted him to honor Mordecai in the way he described.)
13. What is one way to guard against having a prideful attitude? (Pray every day that God would help you please Him in how you treat others.)
